

RadioAM/FM RadioInternet RadioSatellite Radio

Corey's Radio Blog

By Corey Deitz, About.com Guide to Radio

My Bio | My Blog | My Forum

Add to: iGoogle | My Yahoo! | RSS

Radio Pros Continue to Turn to Podcasting

Monday February 22, 2010

People who work in traditional Radio and people who would like to be in Radio all wonder if Internet Radio and Podcasting can be a viable vehicle for careers. I think the answer to this question is slowly evolving into "yes, it can".

Writing at washingtonpost.com, Mike Musgrave has a great article about longtime radio pro, Mike O'Meara. O'Meara lost his on-air gig at 106.7 last year because of a format change. "For most of O'Meara's on-air career, losing a radio show would have meant a job hunt and a move to a different market," writes Musgrave.

But, O'Meara decided to have a go at Podcasting a show and apparently he is parlaying his 25 years in the Washington, D.C. market into a viable online offering. Read Musgrave's article and you'll be able to catch more of the details. For pros who have lost their jobs over the past few years and newbies who are looking for a way to get in front of the mike, Podcasting continues to offer a surprising amount of opportunities.

Read it: With this Web radio gig, who needs FM?

Listen Online: The Mike O'Meara Show

For advertising or business information, contact Marc Ronick.

marc@mikeomearashow.com